In 1906 he was appointed judge of Norway Municipal Court, an office he held continuously with the exception of a few weeks early this year, when he resigned owing to ill health. After his recovery, he accepted reappointment.

The deceased has been a member of the school board and was superintendent of schools for two years; was chairman of the Union school board which includes Norway, Waterville and Oxford; has been president of the Norway Savings Bank for several years; treasurer of the Norway Building Association and Public Library; treasurer of the Norway Pine Grove Cemetery Association; was a member of the Portland Club of Portland and the Harvard Club of Boston.

Jordan of Norway; also a granddaughter, Elizabeth Joyce Joslin, and a sister, Mrs. Henry C. Metcalf, of New Rochelle, who with her husband Dr. Metcalf, has been in Lewiston since Tuesday.

Local Talent Drama

"Skidding" Presented for Benefit Norway Public Library—$50 Cleared For New Books

Political complications and matrimonial entanglements were human interest incidents in the comedy-drama, "Skidding," which kept the audience in a gale of laughter, Wednesday evening.

The play by local people, was presented in the Norway Opera House, under the auspices of the Public Library and produced by Harold A. Anderson, a member of the cast.

Skidding was an appropriate name for a comedy which developed in a well ordered family after direct hits, and politics stepped in to tear the motto "Home Sweet Home" from the walls. The plot was a comedy of domestic life, and the father-judge, wisely counseled the dissatisfied and combative daughters to swap spouses as a remedy. Of course, that advice was not followed.

Eleanor Wood appeared in the part of Aunt Milla, a spinster apparently without love entanglements and qualified to offer advice when matters came to a head. Wilfred Conary, Jr., as Andy Hardy, a high school lad of the safety razor age, was a hector and full of mischief. He kept the kid brother, the family used him whenever convenient. He too fell under the spell and had a bad attack of "puppy love" so-called. This meant flowers to the girl, shaving cream for himself, and numerous things incidental to the disease.

Clayton Murch impersonated Grandpa Hardy, old, a trifle deaf, and handicapped with rheumatism. Having years of experience behind him, he gave bits of wholesome advice in a pathetic way, to show affection for his grandchildren.

Harold Anderson entered the story as Mr. Stubbs, a politician and booster for the Judge in the campaign and entered the love affairs only as an accessory before the fact, while using his influence to get Marion Hardy into politics. Music for the evening was furnished by the well known instrumental trio, Miss Elizabeth Klein, piano; Miss Marion Haskell, violin; and Miss Josephine Reed, cello.

Miss Marion Welch, in a certain speech thanked all for the generous patronage, and expressed appreciation of the loyalty of the players and others. She announced about $50.00 would be made and used for library books.

Among other things he emphasized that the jury room is not a place to consider whether or not a law is right or wrong, just or unfair. A law on the statute books is "black and white" and cannot be changed by the jury in any way. The jury in company with County Attorney E. Movie Benefit

Sunday Show for Unemployed

A benefit movie picture entertainment for the local unemployed is a plan submitted to the selectmen by Arthur Harriman, manager of the Rex and Strand Theatres in Norway and South Paris.

Some Sunday evening is the time proposed when the theatres, film service, and assistance of the employers will be contributed free and every cent taken at the box office turned over to some local organization or committee for administration.

This emergency plan is in line with a country wide movement inaugurated by the moving picture producers as their contribution to the communities they serve.

The matter has been taken up with many of the business men and pastors of the churches will be approached. Naturally opinions vary on the question of Sunday shows, but all agree something should be done to create a fund for the assistance of families during cold weather.

Mr. Harriman emphasizes that this is not a publicity stunt from selfish motives, but a sincere desire to render real community service with the cooperation of the citizens. He points out that Rex Theatre will seat 400 people. With a capacity house the income from even one performance would provide a neat sum for fuel, food, clothing, rent and other necessities.

Under the Maine law a special permit will be necessary to charge admission to any Sunday entertainment. Many in favor of the plan predict the coming winter will bring hardships and the benefit performance as suggested is justified.

GRANGE FAIR

The Grange fair takes place next week, November 12. There will be a Public Market, on this there will be vegetables, canned goods, butter, eggs and home cooked food. There will also be fancy articles, amusements and a mystery booth for the kiddies. Refreshments and candy booths will also be there. During the supper hour a fine chicken pie supper and an entertainment of mixed numbers with dancing afterwards.

Frances Lasselle and Fannie Gannon visited Mrs. Gannon's parents at Center Lovell last week.

Elmer Aldrich and Homer Aldrich attended the Maine-Colby football game at Waterville, Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. Lillian Jenkins and her son, Earl Pierce, have moved from the Jones house on Whitman Street to Alpine Street.

Mrs. N. H. Holden, Lisbon Brown and Rexford Waite have been spending a few days at the N. Y. Holden farm at Sweden.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Tyler were at Keenebunk, Tuesday, and on the way stopped at Wells to see Joseph Therian, a farmer.

Fred N. Noble and Philip Noble of Norway and Dr. Fred G. Noble of Bridgton are at Rapid River this week, on a hunting trip.

Maillister has returned from a visit of several months in Fryeburg, Lovell and Stow. She has been knitting mittens and has completed 350 pairs, mostly all men's size.

In New England the commercial apple crop is expected to total 1,350,000 barrels compared with 1,435,000 barrels expected a month ago. 2,470,000 barrels the apple crop harvested last year and 1,844,000 barrels the five year average 1925-1929.
This prospect is forty-five percent less than the crop harvested last year and twenty-seven per cent below the five year average. The apple crop is extremely light in all New England States except Vermont, where a crop somewhat less than average has been harvested. All of the New England States shared in the decline in prospects during September.

A black and white illustration. At the top, a winged figure, possibly an angel or a personification of knowledge, sits at a desk. The figure has large, feathered wings and is holding an open book. On the desk are a lamp and an hourglass. Above the figure, the word 'READ' is partially visible on the left and 'AMES' on the right, suggesting the word 'READ' is part of a larger phrase like 'READ THE NEWS'. Below the desk, two sailors in uniform are sitting on a bench. The sailor on the left is wearing a pith helmet and has a bandolier across his chest. The sailor on the right is wearing a flat cap. They are both looking towards the right. The background is filled with stylized, swirling lines representing clouds or smoke.

In observance of this day we honor the memory of heroes whose sacrifice bears witness that there is character in humanity. . . . faith in men, . . . courage in the world. . . . Let us read again the names of those who died for the preservation of the American tradition of Independence, . . . of spirit, . . . of thought, . . . of action. . . . As we review their deeds may we acquire in our own hearts some part of their valor. . . . May they live again in our renewal of courage. . . . We fail to live up to our heritage when we cease to pay tribute to those who gave their all in carrying through to victory in the dark days of the World War.

1918 - NOVEMBER 11th - 1931

Today we commemorate the spirit of those dauntless souls who faced the supreme sacrifice—maybe in fear—but in the line of duty as handed down to them in the teachings of their forefathers.
